TERROIR

This wine comes from vineyards that are located in both extremes of La Rioja. From Ábalos, with clay-calcareous soils, to Monte Yerga, with stony soils, that helps with the ripening of the Garnacha. In both locations vineyards are planted at an altitude of 650-700 meters.

2022 VINTAGE

Vintage that thanks to the altitude of these two plots, it has been possible to maintain freshness, acidity, and the floral character that Grenache expresses at a high altitude. The vintage was marked by water stress and several heat waves.

WINEMAKING

50% Tempranillo from Ábalos and 50% Garnacha from Monte Yerga. The two varieties had the alcoholic and malolactic fermentation separately in concrete tanks. Ageing separately in French oak 500-litres barrels. Medium toast, new and second-year use barrels for Tempranillo. Light toast, and second-year use for Garnacha. After 15 months of ageing in barrels, the two varieties are blended in concrete tanks for 6 six months before bottling.

STYLE

A balanced and enveloping wine, elegant and with a refreshing acidity. The harmony between red and black fruit intertwines with subtle spiced and balsamic notes. Its fine and silky tannin supports a long and persistent finish.

PAIRING

Asian meat dishes, veal chops, cured meats, blue cheese.
